LANDLORD LOBBY GATHERS IN ALBANY; WILL TRY TO TAKE TEETH OUT OF RENT LAWS

Air Is Full of Suggestions to Make It Easier for Real Estate Owners.
NOTHING FOR TENANTS.
Main Hope of Latter Is Evening World's Plan and Lockwood Committee.

ALBANY, Sept. 18.—The lobby of the landlords to extend guidance to the special session of the Legislature which meets to consider the housing crisis is already gathering here. Persons who know their way about the Capitol and speak the language of the Legislature and its members in persuasive tones have appeared already in the hotel lounging rooms or have engaged quarters.

Some of them have not before been identified with real estate or apartment owning interests—but as this session will deal with nothing but housing it is taken for granted that these old visitors have suddenly been thrust to new throbs and contractions of sympathy with the landlords and their collectors.

There are to be many suggestions made by legislators as to how the teeth in the law are to be ground. There are to be arguments already in print urging that the restrictions on rents for this or that class of apartment be exempted—such as reconstructed dwellings, new apartments which replace old buildings, apartments which have been sold to tenants under the co-operative plan, apartments where the rents have been fixed in leases made two years or more ago, etc.

FISCHER FIGHTING EXTRADITION FOR WALL ST. WARNING

Having Been Adjudged Insane, He Must Stay in Canada, Says His Counsel.

HAMILTON, Ont., Sept. 18.—A legal fight over extradition of Edward Fischer, detained here in connection with warnings he issued concerning the New York Wall Street explosion, loomed to-day.

Counsel for Fischer, former tennis star, insist that, having been adjudged insane by the Hamilton Lunacy Commission after his arrest here yesterday, he cannot be removed from Canada.

N. L. Buchanan and M. B. Creighton, United States Secret Service men from Buffalo, who have arrived here to take Fischer back to the United States, claim that some years ago he was detained in an asylum on an insanity charge and that this paved the way for immediate deportation.

R. O. Pope, Fischer's brother-in-law, before returning to New York told of an attempt at suicide which he said Fischer had made about fourteen years ago. Pope said Fischer climbed out on the suspension bridge at Niagara Falls and lowered himself so that he hung from the trestle. As he was about to lose his grasp, Fischer was a vision in which his mother urged him not to destroy himself. He scrambled back on the bridge and returned home.

A remarkable incident in connection with this alleged attempt at suicide, as told by Pope, was that Mrs. Fischer had been asleep at the time her son was hanging from the trestle, and in a dream had seen her son there in the shadow of death.

American officials are investigating a statement credited to Fischer that he had been in communication with the wife of one of the best explosive experts in the United States.

SEA CHASE IS ON FOR BLAST 'CLUES' THROWN ON SCOW

Somebody Forgot to Keep Debris and Police Are Racing for It on Tugs.

The Police Department, aided by a tug, set out at top speed this morning to rectify an oversight in connection with the Wall Street explosion. Whether they will be able to do it or not depends solely upon the speed of the tug, not upon the speed of the police.

The tug, with a score of police and detectives aboard, is chasing out to sea after a rubbish scow into which, for some reason not yet explained, all the litter which followed the explosion and which might contain objects of value in tracing the perpetrators of the outrage, had been dumped without investigation.

It had been stated on the first day that the police would probably look carefully through this debris for clues or what not, but the department seems to have forgotten all about this. When it called up the Street Cleaning Department to-day to know what had become of the litter, the succinct answer came back that it was on a scow on its way to sea to be dumped.

Then the Police Department got very busy, enlisted a tug and set out to intercept the scow before it could be dumped. If it is ever caught and brought back, all the rubbish will be sifted by the best detectives in the department.

COLLISION TIES UP LEXINGTON AVE "L" CARS TAKE FIRE

Policeman Injured in Rear-End Crash at Jamaica—Firemen Called Out.

Traffic was tied up on the Lexington Avenue "L" from 10:15 o'clock till noon to-day as the result of a rear-end collision at Jamaica station. Policeman William P. Maher, doing strike duty on the forward train, which was standing on the tracks when the other ran into it, was thrown to the platform. He was treated for contusions and lacerations of the hands and sent home.

No passenger was hurt, although both the rear car of the stalled train and the front one of the colliding train caught fire. Charles Platt, motorman of the colliding train, which was bound for New York from Jamaica, has not yet told his story.

The fire in the two cars was extinguished by the Astoria Fire Department. The damage was slight. While the track was being cleared transfers were issued to the surface cars.

The police received a report that several persons had been slightly hurt. The crews of both trains were taken to Richmond Hill Police Station to be questioned.

ITALIAN SHIP BUYER HURT IN EXPLOSION

Signor Nigri Had Been in U. S. Only Three Days, Representing Foreign Capitalists.

It became known to-day that Signor Pietro Nigri, now in the Volunteer Hospital recovering from wounds received in the Wall Street explosion, was in this country but three days and represented Italian capitalists in the purchase of more than 150,000 tons of American ships.

Signor Nigri had just left the offices of the American International Corporation, No. 120 Broadway, with Commander Carlo Piatre of the Royal Italian Navy. They were walking down Nassau Street when the explosion occurred. One man was killed outright a few steps ahead of them and Signor Nigri was wounded severely in the side. Commander Piatre received slight cuts about the hands. Signor Nigri will be removed to the Hotel Pennsylvania to-day.

An extra guard of 400 policemen was this afternoon placed on all public buildings, the homes of all city officials and those of prominent persons likely to be menaced by terrorists, and also the guard in the financial district was doubled. At Police Headquarters no reason for this precaution was given, but it was said that the guards would be on duty continuously until Monday morning.

A blacksmith who believes that he shod the hind hoofs of the horse which drew the explosive into Wall Street on Thursday was to-day located by the police. This man, whose name they declined to disclose, stated that he was almost sure that he recognized the shoes by their size, shape and marking. The shoes, he said, had been set about forty-eight hours before the explosion, but inspection showed that they had been in actual use for not more than two hours. From this it was deduced that after being shod, the animal was not used, but held in readiness for his last work, that of dragging the bomb wagon into the financial district.

Chief of the Secret Service William J. Flynn and his operatives are to-day searching for Carlo Tresca, who for years had been prominently identified with Anarchists and their groups. He was a close friend of Salsedo, the "Red" who committed suicide by leaping from the offices of the Department of Justice on the fourteenth floor of the Park Row Building, where he was being held to give valuable information against his comrades concerning the bomb plot of June, 1919. He made a confession and then, fearful that his life would be forfeit for it, killed himself. It is known that Tresca was in Salsedo's company immediately before the latter's arrest, but disappeared afterward and all trace of him has been lost.

BOMB WAGON WAS GOING WESTWARD.
Although some witnesses of the disaster, notably Lawrence Serbin, of No. 258 Grand Street, whose statements were published yesterday, have said that the red bomb wagon was going eastward along Wall Street immediately before the explosion; a majority of the victims in hospital who are able to give information about it say that the wagon was going westward toward Broadway.

The police therefore incline more strongly to this belief and add the testimony of a street sweeper who was at work opposite the third window of the Morgan offices and saw the red wagon coming up Wall Street from the direction of William Street. This sweeper said he saw the driver of the vehicle, but paid little more attention to him than to note that he got down from the wagon as soon as it was stopped at the entrance of the United States Assay Office and walked quickly toward Broadway. Continuing his work along the gutter on the south side of Wall Street, the sweeper pried his broom as far as Nassau and then the explosion came.

BOMB SET OFF AT WRONG SPOT
Although the bomb wagon was stopped almost at the entrance of the United States Assay Office and there expended it is the belief of the police that this was not the spot the plotters had chosen for the tremendous blast. This they feel sure was the opposite side of the street, either at the entrance or by the Wall Street wall of the Morgan offices. The failure of the driver of the wagon to gain such a position is supposed to have been due to the fact that the infernal machine in the wagon was already set, timed for explosion, when the vehicle came into the financial district and that the driver did not have time to reach the designated spot and get off with his life. So, when he saw the hands of the clock on Trinity Church so near the noon hour and his wagon
